GENERAL PROFESSIONAL REQUIREMENTS:

For many professions, a general certification of language proficiency may be sufficient. Exams such as the Goethe-Zertifikat, telc Deutsch, and ÖSD Zertifikat, covering levels from A1 to C2, can meet the requirements for a wide range of jobs. The specific level required (usually B2 or C1) depends on the profession and the employer's criteria.

The table 2. below summarizes key German language proficiency exams tailored towards professionals in high-demand fields, refugees, and individuals seeking family reunification or joining a spouse in German-speaking countries.

Target Group	Proficiency Exam	Description	Common Requirements
Professionals in Demand	Goethe-Zertifikat	Recognized worldwide, suitable for various professions. Offers levels from A1 to C2, with B2 or C1 often required for professional roles.	B2 or C1 for professional effectiveness
	telc Deutsch	Offers a wide range of exams aligned with the CEFR. telc Deutsch B2 or C1 is recommended for professionals in sectors like IT, engineering, and healthcare.	B2 or C1 depending on the profession
	ÖSD Zertifikat	Similar to Goethe and telc, recognized in Austria, Germany, and Switzerland. Suitable for all professionals.	B2 or C1 for higher professional roles
Refugees	DTZ (Deutsch-Test für Zuwanderer)	Designed for immigrants and refugees as part of integration courses in Germany, covering A2-B1 levels.	A2-B1 for initial integration
Spouse/Family Reunion	Goethe-Zertifikat	Widely accepted for family reunion visa applications. A1 or higher may be required to join a spouse or family in German-speaking countries.	A1 for family reunion visas
	ÖSD Zertifikat A1	Specifically designed for those needing to prove basic German proficiency for family reunification in Austria.	A1 for joining family or spouse
